POSTMASTER O. B. ADAMS OF LYNN being examined by Colonel Bliss for the prosecution, testified as follows: I am the postmaster of Lynn, Mass., and examine letters as received from time to time; letters from Washington do not come in New York pouches; I have never seen in our office any letter post-marked Washington having on it a New York stamp; when letters arrive we immediately assort them and deliver them by carriers; I sim generally acquainted with names of those who receive letters in Lynn; I never heard of a person there called H. L. or Henry L. Morey; since this question arose I have made efforts to discover such person there; I have searched my carriers' books and directories; I have looked at the registry of deaths and have conversed with many about him; I have never been able to discover any one who knew him; I do not know of the Employers' union—that is, under that hanne on the general delivery letters we receive at Lynn we put a stamp, and if a letter was addressed to H. L. Morey, Lynn, Mass., such a stamp would have been impressed on it; general delivery letters are marked on lists and zung up in the office; I have with me the list which covers from the 4th to the 23d of January, 1850; I do not find fit L. Morey is name on it, I have with me what I call my postoffice directory, which ha a record of removals, etc., but I do not find this mains there; he haver had a box in our office; I have never usen a letter addressed to Heary L.

Morey until within a week ago; there are intree in the office now waiting to be called for.

Mr. Brooke stated that the defence had never claimed that Morey was a resident of Lynn, though he had been there off and on in his labor movement.

SAMURE P. BUBIER vas examined by Mr. Bell for the prosecution: I m sixty four years old, and have resided at Lynn, with the exception of two trips to Europe, all my for an a slow manufacturer, and have been in life an a sloe manufactore, and have been in the business forty years have never known any organized association of employers in Lynn and to my knowledge such an association has never exists the driving the Crispin strike, in 1874 I was mayor of the city of Lynn; in that year the manufacturers held a meeting in the third story of the lamb building, as the strike was a hard one; any one could not to the needings, there was no name for the meetings, there being no organized association; when the strike caded the meetings coased; I do not know her do I believe there is such a person as Morey there; there was no such man at our meetings. man at our meetings. JOHN M. HUBLEY down M. HURLEY testified for the prosecution; I reside in Washington, D. C., and on the distributing clerk in the postofice there; have held a position since February last, and previous to that time was canceling-stamp clerk; in February, 1889, canceling-stamps were changed; as at the 15th, I think; the samp on the Morey cavelope was not in use in the office at the time it was dated. at the time it was disted.

Cross-examined: Prior to the 1st of February stamps used were of rusher; there were two stamping clerks; about the 1st of February, after I was transferred to the distributing department, a cleange of stamps was effected; steel stamps were introduced.

"ABRAM S. HEWFIT,

change of samps was effected; steel stamps were introduced.

"ABRAM S. MEWITT, take the stand," called Mr. Howe.

He restined; I reside in New York city, and do husiness here; I have been a hiember of congress and an acquainted with Goneral Garifold, sudam familiar with his handwriting; these letters I hand you are from him; there are three of them, and are signed by him; I have frequently seen his signature; the Morey letter which I have him; hand handwriting; these letters I hand in my ophison, in General Garifold, sudam furer the Morey letter which I have him; hand handwriting. I have no doubt of idany further than that a cleave counterfeiler can forge any man's signature; the signature of the Morey letter is in my ophison, in the handwriting of General Garifeld; I have compared the signature with the Jewell, Rockwell and O'Nelli letters and I am more confident of the genutiness of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Signature with the Jewell, Rockwell and O'Nelli letter; the word "companys" in the Morey letter is in concording to the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the pointies of the Morey letter than I am of the More

Several gentlemen invited by Mr. McKenzie, city postniaster, had made long speeches, when Mr. Burke, accompanied by General Whitaker and several members of the National Townshi dub of Wathington, D. C., eame into the hall and took was son the stage. Mr. McK, sepred forward to address the meeting, when he was greetel with a shower of hisses, and several lond voices in the hall should "Sit down, you are opposed to Major Bayly for congress." The old gentleman recting the temper of the meeting, abandoned the attempt to speak, and Mafor Burke, who was landing called for, stepped to the front and obtained quiet by inoving that Mr. A. W. Harris, presidential elector for the eighth district, who was in the hall, be livited to take a scat on the stage.

After Professor Greener, who delivered a magnificent speech, Major Burke was again called for and aroused the acting to the highest picks of enthusiasm. He invited attention to the fact that the maine of Major S. P. Bayly had not been mentioned in the meeting, and that his ofection was as important as that of the electoral ticket. He scored the authors of frandulent runors and tekets unnecedably, and denounced as traitors those who falled to stand by the whole tlevel. He called on the extire meeting to learn if there was one man who would fail to support Major B. Not one in this hall was willing to be put down as exposed to Boyly.

Mr. Chapman next spoke being there on the invitation of Mr. McKensie, but he had not progressed far before he said in reply to Major Barke that he claimed the right to oppose Mr. Bayly. This brought on him a storm of hisses and the meeting was brought to an abrupt close. Mr. Chapman, a government official or clerk, will not soon atlempt to lead a colored voter astray from a regular momination of the republican party. The meeting which lasted two and a helf hours, was a grand sheeces.

The democratic rally was attended by the Young Men's Hausock and English club, south Washington club and Jackson Democratic association of Washington, all of whom came down in ferry-boats chartered for the occasion. Upon their actival they were met by their democratic brethren, who turned out in large numbers, with banners, torches and transparencies, and escorted through the princed party and an analysis of the speakers was erected at the corner of King and Washington streets, where addresses were made by Messrs, Neale, Giman, Buchanan, Fitzhugh Lee, Barbour and Widehnal. The meeting adjanrand shortly after midnight.
